Funeral Service For Mrs. H. C. Nissen Held November 28

Mrs. H. C. Nissen, the former Emily Lucille Peterson, was born at Verdala, Nebraska, on November 28, 1908. She came to Irma from McLoughlin, Alta., with her husband and family in December, 1949.

Because of poor health her activities in the community were limited but those who came to know her in her own home found her a true friend. The beauty of her character showed best in her love of flowers and gardening and her devotion to her home and family. She bore a long and trying illness with patience and cheerfulness and passed away in the Wainwright hospital on November 24.

Funeral services were held from the Irma United Church on November 28 with the Rev. H. W. Ingles in charge. Mr. Ingles text was from John 11:25-26: "I am the resurrection and the life. I say the Lord. Whosoever believeth on me though he die yet shall he live."

Home Economist Newsnotes

—Your District Home Economist, Edna M. Craig.

HELLO HOME-MAKERS — This week I have some suggestions for polishing your furniture to a high lustre before festivities begin.

White Rings—Some of your furniture may be defaced with white rings caused by heat, steam or moisture. Here are some remedies for this condition. The best is, of course, prevent the cause. However, if it's too late for that, try these cures. (Any one should help.)

Quick application of ammonia or alcohol followed immediately with a rubbing oil or polish.

Rub the area with a cloth moistened in linseed oil.

Rub with turpentine.

Rub with half and half mixture of linseed oil and turpentine.

Add a little rottenstone to oil and turpentine and rub.

Scratches — Small scratches may sometimes be removed by flowing turpentine into them with a small brush, until the surfaces are even. Commercial polish is available and easy to apply.

Spots—If wiped away quickly will disappear when the furniture is polished.

Polishing — Before polishing dust surface with a soft lintless cloth of knitted cotton silk or rayon. Cosecloth is also satisfactory when dusting, gather dust into cloth, do not spread around.

A treated dust cloth can be made by adding one quarter cup lemon to 1 pint boiling water. Place 6-8 cloths into this mixture, allow them to absorb as much liquid as possible. Wring out and dry. When cloths are soiled, wash and treat again.

Sewing Clinics—Any organization wishing information on the three day Sewing Clinic can obtain it by writing to me.

4H BEEF CLUB TOUR WAINWRIGHT FARMS

On Saturday, November 24, fifteen members of the Irma 4H Beef Club attended a tour of a number of farms east of Wainwright.

The first point of stopping was at the Refinery at Wainwright. Here we were taken on a complete tour.

After lunch in Wainwright, we next stopped at Ed Creech's farm. We were shown a number of his purebred Shorthorn cattle. Continuing on to Ed Plaxton's we saw his two Hereford female prize winners at the Vermilion and Lloydminster Summer Fairs. Our next stop was at the farm of Max Traffic. Ideal cattle feed-lots were inspected. Also his herd of both grade and purebred Herefords were viewed.

Our last stop was at Bert Walker's. A number of calves were seen. An item of interest seen was his new self-feeder. Continuing on down Highway 14, we arrived back in Irma with many new ideas for feeding cattle.

Balanced Farming

This is a term which is more often heard these days and which will become still more common in the future. Another term which means the same thing is planned farming. A planned, or balanced farm is one for which the operator has drawn up a plan of operation which includes field layout, crop rotation, livestock program and farm records. This enables the farmer to plan his production ahead of time and to take advantage of any anticipated changes in market conditions. It also means that farm operations are carried on in such a way that the productivity of the farm is maintained or increased, thus providing for the future.

There is no such thing as a standard farm plan, each farm and farmer must be considered in making up the plan for the unit. The end result of a proper plan is a farmer doing what he does best while maintaining the proper balance of investment to returns of field crops to livestock which will give a satisfactory income while providing for the continued productivity of the farm.

Any farmer wanting to discuss his farming program is invited to drop into my office. Various types of farm business appraisal forms are available for use.

Hog Production

Now that hog prices are up again there is a demand for sows. The result will probably be that any type of sow that is available will be kept for breeding. That is one of the worst things which can happen. There is no place in our hog business for off-type, low grading pigs. There is more profit in one litter of "A" grade pigs than in three litters of "C" grade pigs. Good sows will cost more than poor ones but they also give better returns so don't keep off type sows for breeding purposes.

Trees For 1957

Not very many kinds of trees are left now. Caragana, poplar, willow, maple and lodge pole pine are about all. These make good windbreaks so if you have a piece of ground summer-fallow but just haven't got around to ordering your trees, you had better do it right away.

In Canada there is one passenger automobile for every 8.3 persons.

Good manners would enhance even a weak argument

(From The Canadian, Camrose, Alta.—September 12, 1956)

Last Sunday morning we were listening to a Parliamentary Press Gallery radio lecture when an embassy official at Ottawa was broadcasting on behalf of his own country. We were amazed that the CBC would pass a script that contained such an unwholesome reference to the British tenure in India. After all, one does not go right into the sacred precincts of a neighbor's home and regale to him all his faults. It is incidents like these that have undermined the confidence of the Canadian radio listeners in the higher echelons of the CBC. For years the CBC has winked at the rampant Communist propaganda that has been broadcast over Vancouver stations, but after all, one does not harbor a nest of rattlesnakes in his own kitchen. Getting back to the man speaking on India, he reminded us very much of certain Mexican patriots we met in that country last winter. He is convinced that all the recent progress in his own country is due to the efforts of the Indian people alone. Actually, what really happened was that World War II poured so much of the world's wealth in her lap for the purchase of munitions and supplies that she found herself in a revolutionary upsurge of national consciousness. In Mexico it was the ready sale of her petroleum supplies during the war that set her up as a national figure. We grant the premise that Britain did not do all she might have done for the Indian people, but she did keep them from slaughtering one another off, which, in the opinion of many world observers, might have been a mistake. Anyway, as soon as Britain withdrew from India the civil strife resulted in the communal slaughter of some six millions of her people, the race riots being between the Hindus and Moslems. Only by outside intervention did this slaughter cease, with Indian and Pakistani forces still standing poised on one another's boundaries. All this was not mentioned by the Indian speaker last Sunday morning. We feel that the CBC should teach him some good manners before allowing him the freedom of Canada's airways a second time.

Canadian citizenship

(From The Times, Morden, Manitoba—November 7, 1956)

Canadian citizenship will be conferred on 10 new Canadians in an impressive ceremony in the Collegiate Auditorium, Wednesday evening. The Kingsmen club of Morden are to be highly commended for their work in connection with this event, which is of sufficient importance in a democracy such as ours to be almost ignored by most Canadians. Thanks to the actions of the Kingsmen, a good number of citizens in this community have attended similar ceremonies in the past couple of years, and it is hoped, will do so again.

The ceremony holds something of interest and value for us all. The Kingsmen provide a setting that is conducive to appreciation of the significance of the occasion with the decorations, the flag-bearing scouts and guides, and a speaker of note. These help to create a spectacle with pageantry and glamour. And the repetition of the Oath of Allegiance can not help but make an impression on those that have never heard it or had occasion to utter it. Everyone who attends will take home something of value, and perhaps this will include a fuller awareness of the privilege we enjoy in being Canadians.

Somehow it works out

(From The Sun, Swift Current, Sask.—October 27, 1956)

Acclamations like we had for the city council in Swift Current are not ways the best sign. It was evident, of course, that people were satisfied with the present administration although during the "pavement period", listening to the gossip around the city, one would have thought the city fathers were a bunch of dopes. We are not saying that the men who were given acclamation are not public spirited and capable citizens and suited for the job; they are to be commended for offering their services. But general acclamations denote an unwillingness to serve by many and an attitude of "laissez faire".

The report was around that while some of the members of the school board wanted to call it a day, having already sacrificed more than a medium of their time and energy in the interest of education, it was necessary to nearly shanghai enough men to fill the slate. And then it became an election for the collegiate board whose personnel was expanded by our growing population.

Where there is keen competition for public office, there is evident a keen awareness of the responsibilities of citizenship and that is a good thing for any municipality and any community. There were many acclamations in the rural municipal field also, and one R.M. even has to call another nominating meeting because two divisions were not represented and no names put forward.

So goes life in a democracy. But the funny thing is that, with its many foibles, inequities and maybe injustices due to human factors, democracy is sweetly workable and somehow we muddle through and have built a wonderfully satisfying social order, which for liberty, equality and way of life cannot be matched by any other system.

Long and Short of It

I'm fond of conversing with folks of the sort
Who know how to render a long story short.
However, I happen to know quite a throng
Of experts at making a short story long!

They need help too

(From The Journal, Humboldt, Sask.—November 8, 1956)

Any Monday evening after six o'clock, you can go down to the Wigwam and have a couple of hours of real entertainment. It may not be the "fancy" kind of entertainment usually associated with the Wigwam and its junior hockey, but you'll see almost a hundred youngsters learning the game of hockey.

Ranging in age from seven to 16, these are the youngsters who we hope some day will be playing for the Indians and maybe in the National League. They are the kids next door and our own. They, and those who are in charge, ask very little in the way of support except that they would like to see parents and friends out to watch them in action. But although they ask for little, we are sure that the backing of a few organizations would be appreciated.

It takes money to outfit and equip a hockey team. Not all parents can afford to buy their sons new skates, pants and pads every year, nor that equipment is worn out every year but youngsters have a habit of growing out of things very quickly.

It would seem that the organization in charge of the bantams, pee wees, midgets, juveniles and the rest could actually do some at first rate help in the form of equipment assistance. If instead of the parents buying their son equipment for his own personal use, he was to give the amount required to the organization and let them buy the necessities for the use of more than just one, we think all would be better off. Why should one boy go out with full padding and uniform and the next one have to use magazines to protect his shins?

The Little League Baseball Association gets splendid support from four organizations each year. They probably require it. But hockey is supposed to be our national sport, surely those who are trying to keep it alive deserve some help and recognition, too.

We'd like to see some of our local organizations really get behind these young fellows who want to play hockey.

Lets get down to business

WITH OUR ATTITUDE TOWARDS INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION

(From The Canadian, Camrose, Alberta—September 12, 1956)

Up to the present time, it is our opinion that not enough serious thought and action has been brought to bear towards inducing industry to locate in Camrose. This paragraph is not so much a criticism of the past as a plea for better organization for the future. At various times there have been inquiries made here, but for some reason the results have always been negative. The public has never been taken into the confidence of the officials and no one on the outside has ever been informed just why the projects did not realize. Now, with a Camrose man on the Provincial Industrial Development Board, in the person of Hal Yerxa, we feel that the time has come when the City Council should refer all such inquiries to the Board of Trade's Industrial Committee, which in turn should be in liaison with Mr. Yerxa at all times. The Council could come into the picture when property and taxation problems were under consideration, but the internal secrecy that has surrounded negotiations in the past could be overcome to a point where an organized committee would benefit from past mistakes and a record of negotiations would be available for public information. We are not content to have Camrose sit idly by while other cities with obviously less to offer pick off industry after industry. A city-wide self analysis should be made, and that right quick, for Camrose is too close to Edmonton to be side-tracked by every industry that is seeking a decentralized site. Camrose has a labor potential to support a fairly heavy payroll... these payrolls are mighty nice in the midst of any community.

Colleagues to honor two horticulturists

Two enthusiastic horticulturists widely known for their skill with a packet of seed and a trowel will receive life membership certificates in the Manitoba Horticultural Association at the Association's 59th annual convention, February 12, 13 and 14 in the Broadway government building in Winnipeg.

Mr. J. Thilne, superintendent of the International Peace Garden, and Tom Rose of Nevada will be pre-nited with life-time pass cards by M.H.A. President, J. J. Wall. Home gardeners and delegates from horticultural societies attending the convention will hear H. S. Fry, editor of the Council Guide, and be given an illustrated address on wild flowers by Angus Short, artist with Ducks Unlimited.

Home Ground Competition Trophies and provincial fruit show awards will be presented at the convention's wind-up banquet.

Relatively speaking

An elderly chap, 80, bought a small place on sixth avenue SW. It needed shingling, and he undertook to do it himself, in spite of a game knee.

He was able to complete the job, with the help of a "younger relative". The younger chap won't be 80 for a whole week! 3222

Play it safe, and avoid being the body they have to carry away from the wreckage.

Big emerald found inside fish part of proceeds of robbery

When a haddock was cut open in a fishing boat off Wick, Cathness, recently, a 1943 three-penny bit was found. The finder said he would keep it as a mascot for the rest of his life.

Many seamen believe that anything found in a fish is lucky. A bass caught off the Devon coast in 1939 certainly brought luck to a holiday-making angler. He and his wife decided to have a fish supper and while preparing it he found a large emerald in its gullet.

It proved to be part of the proceeds of a robbery. How the emerald got into the fish's gullet was never discovered, but the finder pocketed the $200 reward which had been offered several years before for its recovery.

When a Grimby trawler reached in 1923, a fisherman named Blith proudly exhibited a sovereign which he had found inside a codfish caught 160 miles from Spurn Head. It bore the date 1918 and appeared to have been battered by the force of an explosion which apparently blew up an unknown ship during the First World War.

It was believed that the sovereign was gulped by the cod as it went shimmering into the depths of the sea.

Cod are very greedy and will swallow anything bright. In the Gulf of St. Lawrence a fisherman found an emerald brooch in a large cod. A Kingston shopkeeper's assistant found a gold wedding ring in the mouth of a cod bought at the Billingsgate Market in London.

Another gold ring was found inside a seven pound cod landed at Whitby. A jeweller who examined it said it was of the design known as the Emperor's knot which was very popular 40 years ago.

In Boyne City, Michigan, Mrs. H. Robinson could hardly believe her eyes when she cut open a fish and found inside the earring she

Christmas Time Is Ideal for Taking Pictures

BY EDNA MILES

FOR picture-takers, Christmas offers opportunities that don't come at any other time of the year. And even those who aren't camera buffs are tempted to try their hands during the holidays because so much good picture material is to be had.

You can start, if you like, with the holiday preparations, from the stuffing of the turkey or goose and the wrapping of the gifts right through to the decorating festivities. Pictures of the family grouped around the table for Christmas dinners are natural.

Christmas Eve is a night dear to everyone. With an easy-to-use, inexpensive camera, you can get close for better snapshots. If your camera has a distance dial, you can focus it down to four feet for real close-ups of Dad reading to the kids, the kids waiting for Santa Claus or an egg-nog party with old friends grouped around the tree.

When you take pictures, keep in mind the fact that these holiday highlights will make fine subjects for next year's photographic Christmas greeting cards. The photographic greeting carries with it a real feeling of personal warmth and it's a Christmas keepsake, too.

Informal family snapshots will be enjoyed long after tinsel is put away. Using small, inexpensive camera, you can take a group shot of Dad reading to kids on Christmas Eve.

Alberta Wheat Pool News Release

Delegates attending the 34th annual meeting of the Alberta Wheat Pool which commenced in Calgary on Tuesday, November 27, were informed by general manager A. T. Baker that the organization had a net operating surplus in the 1955-56 season of $1,042,807. This was after taking capital cost allowances (depreciation) totalling $1,745,227.

Country elevator revenues were approximately the same as the previous year's and terminal revenues somewhat higher but net income was down from last year's level of $1,338,278 mainly because of special allowances for capital cost return on new storage constructed in the past three years.

Handlings of all grains through Pool country elevators in the past season totalled 54,220,106 bushels. This represented 36 percent of all grain marketed in Alberta. Handlings were about 1,200,000 bushels less than in the previous year, the reduction being mainly due to continued congestion of elevators throughout the marketing season.

The response to our first column

"Your Alberta" was most gratifying. Replies were received from every corner of our Province. It's encouraging to know how much everyone is interested in the workings of the various departments of the Government. So—keep your requests coming and let's continue to hear from you.

One of the most uncomfortable words

As the man said when he first saw a giraffe, "there just ain't no such animal." Yet the term is bandied about at all levels of government, within and without the provincial administration. Actually, the government is granting nothing. No government has anything to grant. It does however, sometimes re-apportion revenue collected from one source, to disbursements it believes is doing the most good for the most people.

For example, the cities in the province

serve not only the people within their corporate limits, but also the people from the surrounding districts who use city facilities. The farmers in to shop use the paved streets, the light and power facilities; the police protection; in fact, hundreds of services never considered in normal course of events. By the same token, it seems unreasonable to ask the cities to pay complete cost of providing those services to visitors. So, some of the revenue that accrues from points outside of the cities is returned to the cities in the re-apportionment of revenues, along with moneys already collected from within the urban confines.

LAKE LOUISE—one of Alberta's scenic tourist attractions.

There are scores of other ways in which the cities, and other communities—received benefit from government services. One that still keeps within the realm of the touchy pocketbook was the saving of interest charges for many capital outlays, through the province's Municipal Capital Expenditure Loans Act. There was $27,385,000 loaned out to the eight cities last year at 2 1/2 percent. This is quite a saving on municipal coffers in interest charges, compared with the commercial 5 1/2 to 6 percent possibly charged outside.

That's it for now! Be seeing you soon . . .

News Report From Edmonton

By Ken Mason

EDMONTON — Provincial Treasurer Ted Hinman's campaign to revamp the provincial-municipal revenue structure hit what could be a severe setback during the 22nd annual convention of the Alberta Social Credit League here in the capital last week.

More than 200 delegates, representing constituencies throughout the province, voted solidly against the idea of a provincial sales tax. They did it in spite of a plea from Mr. Hinman to wait until the government has more information on the financial troubles which beset municipalities.

In fairness, it must be pointed out that the treasurer has steadfastly insisted that he is not advocating a sales tax. But observers throughout the province seem to agree in his talks outlining the problem, Mr. Hinman has spent more time dealing with the sales tax than with any other. And he has made it plain that the sales tax is one of several revenue sources to be considered in the proposed reorganization.

Six individual constituency associations submitted resolutions opposing the idea of a sales tax, compared with none in favour. The objection was twofold—that it would hurt the "small man" hardest, and that it would harm the Social Credit party.

Mrs. E. Harvey of Lethbridge said "the people are fearful of a sales tax. The small man will have to pay the bill . . . it sticks the wrong pocket altogether." H. E. Nichols of Edmonton said it will do more harm to Social Credit "than anything we could ever do."

Other speakers said a sales tax would be against the principles of Social Credit, and Mr. Hinman agreed the burden on the small man with the small income is its "chief disadvantage."

Mr. Hinman urged the delegates to wait for the release of a brochure, now being prepared, which would outline arguments for and against various types of taxation. But the convention was determined to make its collective view known.

What this will do to the treasurer's financial review is anyone's guess. So far, he has spearheaded the drive toward an overhaul of provincial-municipal fiscal relations, with the aid of municipal officials who have been called in to work on a committee which is studying the matter.

The question is whether the treasurer will have the wholehearted support of the cabinet in view of the strong opposition expressed by the convention delegates who, after all, represent the backbone of the Social Credit organization.

Obviously the government realizes any new form of taxation is political dynamite, particularly in such a wealthy province. There has been speculation that the political risk has prompted the government to call in the municipalities and let them make the final decision, thereby relieving the province of full responsibility. However, it may be that the tax question is such a hot potato, in view of the reaction, that it won't be worth the risk. Only time will tell.

ON TO OTTAWA—With the possibility of a federal election next year, the convention turned much of its attention to dominion politics. Premier Manning described the federal government's stand on the Middle East crisis as "bambling." Attorney-General Robert Bonner of B.C. said Social Credit will march to Ottawa under a banner of sound monetary policy.

Mr. Bonner dismissed the idea that his party's monetary policy will be anything like the one which swept Social Credit into power in Alberta in the 1930's. "There were many things proposed in the mid-30's which have no application at the present time."

"BE IT RESOLVED"—The convention also dealt with scores of resolutions. Delegates defeated a resolution asking the province to provide free school textbooks; affirmed their opposition to daylight saving time; urged federal help for young farmers; asked for increased pensions for the aged, and supported requests

Quite a Chicken

Last Easter when Ronald Shippy was in Edmonton, a relative gave him five little chicks about a month old. He brought the chicks home and hand raised them. They turned out to be four cockerels and one pullet. At four and a half months this black Australorp pullet began to lay, which is exceptionally early for a heavy breed bird. She only laid a few eggs, when she became broody. She was allowed to set her eggs and she brought off her brood. At this time she is nine months old and has four offspring 6 weeks of age. Quite a record.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Pocock were in Camrose Friday.

A farewell party was held on Friday evening for Mr. and Mrs. Howard Herrick. The groups of friends and neighbors descended on the surprised couple to wish them goodspeed in their new home in Minburn.

Church services were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Revill on November 25.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hollar attended the wedding of Wayne Jackson in Minburn, also the wedding dance in a country school. C. Hollar of Oyen was also present.

Henry Vandervaele and Ed Pocock motored to Camrose on Monday. Ambrose Beckett was in the city.

Little Randy Hollar was rushed to the doctor Sunday night when he fell and cut his eye.

Word has been received that Mr. and Mrs. Leo Shomachuk of Red Deer have a second son.

The community extends sincere sympathy to Mrs. J. B. Campbell on the passing of her aged father.

Mrs. F. Nash and Mrs. H. Vandervaele did the Christmas shopping for the children of the W.A.

According to the diary, a year ago on November 28, the mercury dipped to 36 degrees below. At this point this year it was 49 degrees above. It's almost incredible to believe there could be 85 degrees spread in two year's records.

Swine Raisers Urged To Watch For Erysipelas

Veterinarians report that erysipelas caused more serious losses in the swine population in Alberta during the last four or five years than in any other province in Canada. Alberta swine also have the dubious honor of falling victim to the most powerful disease producing strain of the erysipelas bacteria found in Canada.

Most cases of swine erysipelas occurred during the summer however, swine raisers are cautioned to be especially alert for signs of erysipelas in the pigs this fall and winter. Deaths may occur very suddenly and early symptoms include a high temperature loss of appetite, stiff gait, lameness and arched back. An early diagnosis of the condition can often prevent severe losses as the antibiotic drugs are very effective in control of this disease. It is sometimes necessary to commence a vaccination program to prevent spread of the infection. This disease can also result in crippled animals that are not economical to raise and fatten.

Several resolutions dealt with farm problems. The delegates asked the federal government for immediate advances on farm-stored grain, for storage facilities for grain and for a system of bonus payments on first and second grade farm products, similar to the premiums on hogs.

30 Saskatchewan centres now serviced with natural gas

Five cities and 25 towns, hamlets and villages throughout Saskatchewan are now being supplied with natural gas by the Saskatchewan Power Corporation. With the signing of a new agreement whereby the Corporation will supply the City of Regina with natural gas, the system should increase to over 30,000 customers by the end of 1957.

Practically everyone knows that natural gas flows through a pipeline, but few realize exactly how much work, time and effort is put into every pipeline constructed by the Saskatchewan Power Corporation in order to assure its natural gas customers a continuous supply and complete safety.

A crew of 150 to 200 men work on the construction of a pipeline. At the "front end", the right-of-way crew grades something akin to a rough road on which the machinery will travel. At the same time they install gates at farmers' fence lines to allow passage of the equipment without allowing livestock to stray. Secondly, large trucks string out the pipe along the route after which the trenching crew digs the trench with a trenching machine. Following the ditching, the pipe sections are welded together, cleaned, coated, and then lowered in. Then the back fill men fill in the trench to cover the pipe and the clean up men complete the operation by tidying up.

During construction, the pipe is strung out along the entire route and is welded into continuous strings a mile or more in length. Each pipeline weld is actually three welds. The "hot pass" is the "hot pass" and the "cover pass" as they are referred to by the welders themselves. Each length of pipe is lifted and moved by a caterpillar with a side-mounted boom and clamped to assure perfect alignment. A welder then "tacks" the joint, removes the clamp, and puts on the "stringer bead". This bead should be as strong as the pipe itself. This weld is cleaned and brushed and the second pass, the "hot pass" is put on, usually by another welder.

This "hot pass", put on at a higher temperature, removes the brittleness from the weld. Finally, as insurance the "cover pass" is put on at a cooler temperature to remove some thermal stresses due to the second pass. Each welder is required to put his stamp near any weld on which he works and having done so, is required to sign it. Welds are systematically x-rayed and tested for tensile strength and bending fracture. A welder is not allowed a single mistake on a pipeline job.

Following the welding, the priming and cleaning machine runs along the pipe in a continuous process, cleaning the pipe with wire brushes and painting on the primer.

Close behind, and also running along the pipe, the wrapping machine places a 3/32" coating of coal tar base enamel at approximately 450 degrees Fahrenheit and wraps it with fibreglass or overwrap fibreglass material to add strength and shock resistance to the enamel. The enamel saturates the wrap thoroughly and gives a smooth looking surface. The pipe is then rested on padded skids to avoid damage to the coating before it is lowered.

The ditch is deep enough to allow 36 inches of cover for the pipe. Great precautions are taken in lowering the pipe due to temperature extremes in this country. The pipe is lowered in at intervals and backfilled to anchor it, leaving slack loops between. Slack loops are never lowered in during the heat of the day, but in early morning or cold days. They are lowered in so that the pipe is zig-zagged back and forth in the ditch. This provides some "give" so that any contraction takes up slack rather than creating stresses in the pipe. Immediately before the pipe is lowered, a "holiday detector" is passed along it to detect any defects in the coating. This process is known as "peeping".

This is an electrical instrument operated at a potential of 15,000 volts AC which will short to the pipe and indicate any coating defects. The "holidays" are repaired by hand and the pipe finally lowered in by two side-booms. The ditch is then backfilled and graded to the landowner's satisfaction.

Approximately the same procedures are followed in cities, towns, hamlets and villages, although in these low pressure distribution systems additional protection against expansion and contraction is used in the form of Dresser couplings. In this type of coupling, a ring gasket with a wedge-shaped cross section is wedged tightly against the pipe at both ends of the coupling. Since this gasket is Neoprene or a similar material, it possesses a certain degree of "give" under stress.

Upon completion, the line is cleaned or pigged and tested. In this process a "pig" is driven through the line by air or gas pressure. The "pig" consists of wire brushes interspersed with slightly cup-shaped rubber discs which provide an almost airtight seal with the pipe. The pipe is pigged with gas pressure before final assembly and after completion the entire line is pigged.

After pigging is completed the line is blown out to clear what dust remains and valves are cut into the line. The valves are then closed off and the line filled with gas at 900 pounds pressure per square inch for a bursting and standup test. During the standup test, pressure and temperature readings are taken periodically to determine whether leakage is present.

All pipe, appliances and fittings are inspected by SPC inspectors before being installed and this standard feature of inspection helps to ensure safe operating conditions in customers' homes. Every meter is checked and tested by Federal inspectors before being installed.

Power Corporation servicemen are available at all times for emergency work and servicing and will check and adjust burners to maximum efficiency.

In addition to the inspections made by the SPC and Federal authorities, the Electrical and Gas Inspection Branch of the Provincial Labour Department is in charge of gas installation regulations in Saskatchewan, giving three-fold protection to all customers using natural gas in their homes and buildings.

The pressure of gas is controlled along the distribution system from border station to individual household and is managed so that an integrated "defence in depth" is provided. If pressure should become excessive in one stage of distribution it will be brought under control at the next regulating stage.

An automatic shut-off on regulators, a safety device inaugurated with the first installations, has been retained in present construction. A gas failure in the distribution system causes the regulators to shut off and remain off until manually reset, preventing gas from flowing into furnaces where the pilot was temporarily extinguished by lack of gas.

This efficiency in construction of pipelines and installation and inspection of all meters and appliances has prompted visiting officials from other gas utilities throughout Canada and the United States to state that the Saskatchewan Power Corporation has one of the safest and most modern gas systems on the North American continent.

Snow removal equipment serves 8,000 miles of highway

The Saskatchewan Department of Highways is well along with the preparation of snow removal equipment which will be used to keep approximately 8,000 miles of the provincial highway system open during the coming winter.

To handle the big maintenance job, the department has 110 units of snow removal equipment representing a capital investment of $1,400,000. Included are 11 rotary-type snow blowers, nine of which are truck-mounted, one is mounted on a motor grader and one on a crawler-type tractor. The remainder are V-type plows mounted on motor graders and trucks of from three to 10 tons in size. In addition to the V-blade, the 10-ton trucks carry a snow levelling wing. All units in the snow removal force, except the rotaries and the 30-ton truck plows, are used on other jobs during summer months.

Winter maintenance, which employs from 250 to 300 men, is carried out under the direction of the District Engineer in each of eight highway districts into which Saskatchewan is divided. Roughly 1,000 miles of the provincial highway system is located in each district.

In an effort to give maintenance service when and where it is needed, most of the department establishes a priority rating for snow removal service on the highway system. Such roads are chosen on the basis of traffic density and community services using the artery. This done, the priority rated roads get attention first after a road-blocking storm, because of the number of people affected.

To facilitate clearing after bad storms, machines are placed at strategic points away from headquarters in some districts. In this way the greatest mileage is cleared in the shortest time, and a minimum of travelling from job to job is done by plows and other maintenance machines.

The highways department does some custom snow removal for rural municipalities as conditions and equipment permit, in addition to maintaining those roads in the provincial highway system.

To keep the public informed of road conditions from day to day during the winter months, the department sends out a daily road report to all interested agencies.

1956 Road toll reaches 100

Saskatchewan has now recorded its 100th highway fatality for this year, according to J. A. Christie, chairman of the highway traffic board.

"This figure is running very close to 1955, which was a record year for motor vehicle fatalities. The first quarter of 1956 saw six highway deaths reported, compared with 17 in 1955. By the end of June, 38 deaths had been recorded as against 36 during the same period last year.

"Speeches too fast for weather or road conditions played a major part in these accidents, while driving after drinking played a part in others. "Many dangerous driving weeks lie ahead as winter settles in. Only the drivers themselves will determine whether 1956 sees a new record of highway deaths in Saskatchewan," Mr. Christie said.

Iron and steel represent 36 per cent of the earth's weight.

WHO WEARS THE PANTS?

Watch the gate as school gets out, and you'll find that everybody wears them! Between boys and young men and girls in blue jeans, you can hardly tell one from the other.

One hears a great deal of most unfavorable comment on the ways girls dress for school in jeans and slacks, sloppy jackets and so on. Many of the parents themselves dislike this practice intensely, but find themselves powerless to do anything about it when "Every-body wears them."

There is a very simple direct way to put a stop to it, and that is by making it a rule that girls may not wear slacks and nobody may wear jeans in any classroom in the school.

One basic reason stands out above all others why this should be done. Supposing the Prime Minister of Canada was to visit the Ponoka school, and a girl from an intermediate grade was chosen to present him with a bouquet of flowers. She would not do so in a pair of blue jeans. The reason why she would not is exactly the same as the reason why she should not be allowed to wear jeans on any day in her classroom. The Prime Minister commands more respect than that, and that, and the school should command more respect.

Largest numbers of our students do not respect adults and old people—listen to the way they address them—even when the adult happens also to be their employer. They do not respect public property. Witness the reports of vandalism in every newspaper you pick up. And they do not respect public institutions.

Probably one of the main reasons why they do not show such respect is that the adults do not demand it.

For sports, gym or in very cold weather slacks could be worn over other clothing, but removed before entering the classroom.

Let's help our youngsters learn from the age of six to have a healthy respect for their school and teachers. One very good way to start is to insist that they dress more suitably. After all, the parents and the teachers are the ones who should "wear the pants."

P.S.—There is another aspect of girls in blue jeans neatly summed up in this couplet:

"Some females may look good in slacks."

But that doesn't go for the bulk of them!—Nuff said."

Express concern regarding gun accidents

Sask. Game Commissioner E. L. Paynter is expressing concern over the gun and hunting accidents that have occurred in Saskatchewan since Jan. 1, 1956.

To date Saskatchewan has had 12 such accidents, four of which were fatal. Most of the gun accidents occurred prior to the opening of the game seasons.

"The shocking thing is that only four of the people involved in these accidents were over the age of 17 years, most of the others being between the ages of nine and 16 years," Mr. Paynter said.

Two of the accidents were caused by the victims carrying loaded guns on vehicles. None resulted from the victim being mistaken for game.

The criminal code prohibits minors under the age of 14 from being in possession of firearms at any time, he said.

Mr. Paynter urges parents to see that minors do not come into possession or use firearms unless under the direct supervision of someone who is capable of instructing them in the respect that should be given a weapon, and its use.

"If care is taken by everyone using firearms, we can see to it that no more accidents occur in the province during the remainder of the season," he said.

POPULATION LESS

Canada has less than four persons per square mile of territory compared to more than 50 persons per square mile in the United States.

At this first duty-free airport in the world are spacious warehouses storing premium quality merchandise from all corners of the world, later trans-shipped to other nations without customs formalities.

It is through the two customs-free shops in the terminal, however, that Shannon has gained much of its international fame. Cigarettes are at half American prices, French perfumes are cheaper than in Paris, German cameras cost less than in Berlin, and Soviet watches can be purchased far below retail in Geneva's Rue du Montblanc.

Irish handicrafts—tweeds, linens, glassware, knit goods, toys and many other items native to the "Old Sod"—are on display at astonishingly low prices. The girls in the two shops are carefully selected for good looks, charm, and ability to sell.

It all began in 1942 as a tiny shop at the amphibian base across the river, with a staff of a dozen employees and an income rarely exceeding $15 daily. Now there is a payroll of 400 and a daily income of near $9,000.

The latest development is a mail order department which issues a beautifully designed price list in color available to all Americans and Canadians. Needless to say, orders for the low-priced merchandise are pouring in. Ireland hopes to build up a $500,000 yearly business in mail order alone, and well may exceed that amount in the early future.

Breakfast, a snack, lunch, dinner, or bar service is available at Shannon airport at any time of the day or night. Ireland's only 24-hour-a-day post office is at the airport and the branch office of the Bank of Ireland stays open until 1 a.m. to serve the thousands of businessmen, tourists, servicemen, travellers and "tourists" utilizing the facilities of the airport.

Today, Shannon is not only the most up-to-date airport in Western Europe, but from a technical and meteorological standpoint it is unparalleled. It is free from natural or artificial obstruction and has the best "fog clear" record of any major airport.

which may be used for parties and a holiday centerpiece. One is a 4-sided tree cut out of thin plywood with a base of solid stock. To stand 6 inches high and hold stuck into the four sides of the tree. There is a 6-inch-high brightly painted figure to stand in the center to hold a dish of goodies.

Risked life to save a thimble

What is a wife's most treasured possession? At a Women's Institute exhibition on this theme recently one wife brought along her husband's picture, declaring that the original was too rampagous to be brought along in person.

Another woman exhibited a 14-million-year-old fossil ("I forgot about my husband," she said), a third placed the highest value on a pair of garden shears. Yet at similar exhibition of most treasured items staged by a women's club in Paris, the members brought out objects as various as 60-year-old bottles of perfume and a stuffed python used by Sarah Bernhardt.

Sailing for Canada with her husband, a young bride insisted on returning ashore on the pilot's boat because she had forgotten a lucky pair of treasured house-slippers. In Sheffield a woman risked her life by rushing back into a burning building...

to rescue a thimble used by her family through four generations.

A Manchester woman attached importance to a tattered old teddy bear. Although her grandchildren were permitted to play with it, they were never allowed to hug it for long. When the woman died, her secret came to light. The teddy bear was stuffed with sovereigns.

Over the mantelpiece of a Sussex farmhouse there hangs a wisp of yellowing silk that the farmer's wife considers her most treasured possession of all. It once formed part of a parachute—the 'chute that saved her husband's life when he was a fighter pilot.

Gentle art

A gent who was a champion in the gentle art of getting into arguments, began expounding a position with increasing passion to a stranger next to him in the club car of the Santa Fe Chief. The stranger remained disturbingly uninterested.

The arguer hollered, "Don't you understand what I'm driving at? It is as simple as A-B-C."

"Could be," replied the stranger calmly, "but I am D-E-F."

Helpful Hints

Nowadays a housewife doesn't even have to wear an apron to wallpaper her home. All the messy putting is eliminated with the new pre-pasted papers. Only "tools" necessary are a quinine sponge and a pair of scissors.

For efficiency, equip your kitchen with an old-fashioned piano stool. It can be raised or lowered to the correct sit-down working height.

A lemon peel dropped into the dish water will remove the hardest water and will soften food odors such as fish and onion, from the dishes.

Basements can be protected from dampness by using one of the "water-repellent" compounds which are painted on with a large brush.

Use curly parsley in salads, sandwich fillings, cold meat and fish dishes and as a garnish. Use the minced Italian-type parsley in foods that are being cooked.

The liquid in which vegetables are canned or cooked is rich in minerals drawn from the vegetable. This should never be thrown away, but should be salvaged for enrichment of soups, gravies or vegetable juices.

Homemade jam will not get "sugary" and will keep better if a tablespoon of glycerine is added to every pound of fruit used.

We will also have a "Parcel Post Sale" which has been enjoyed by our many friends in previous years. We also have our Church Calendars for sale.

Miss Lillian Mikkelsen arrived home from the Netherlands, West Indies on Tuesday. We hope our cold climate will not prove too great a shock.

For the benefit of those readers who are enjoying a warmer climate we would like to record that King Winter made a dramatic entrance on Sunday morning riding in on a strong north wind with plenty of snow. The thermometer dropped 40 degrees in a few hours and has dropped a good many more in the past three days. It was about 26 below here on Wednesday morning — a contrast to last week's temperatures which soared around 40 and 55 above. It's no dream that we are going to have a white Christmas.

Jack Kennedy was trucking four cows from the city early this week for Earl Blanchard. Suddenly he became aware that he had an extra passenger. Stopping the truck he removed a new born calf from the box and it rode safely to Blanchard's in the cab with Jack.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stewart of Edmonton visited in Irma last week-end, and also in Wainwright where Bill's mother, Mrs. Stewart and Deloraine's dad, Mr. E. Q. Stockton, are patients in the Wainwright hospital.
